GERMANS RETIRE FROM VITRY AND OTHER POSITIONS

Success of Allies on German Right Now Carried in Some Degree to Center and Left

CALLS EVACUATION "PRECIPITATE"

French War Office Declares Invaders Left So Hastily that They Abandoned War Munitions

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A cablegram of "decided optimism" was received at the French embassy today from Bordeaux. After declaring that the Germans in four days have been pushed back from 60 to 75 kilometres, it is stated that the "general situation has just been modified to our advantage during these past days."

It adds: "The whole Austrian army has been pushed back to the west of Rawa Ruska and the Dneister river. The Russians besiege Grodek."

The cablegram follows:

"The French general staff made known today that the first German army continues its backward movement; three of its army corps were repulsed last night between Villers, Cotterets and Soissons. We have in four days gained from 60 to 85 kilometres.

"In the second army, the German tenth corps and the guard repulsed to the north of the Saint Gond swamps, is also withdrawing. In the Champagne, the third German army has also withdrawn. The German center has thus at last given ground after a hard fight in the region between Sezanne and Vitry. In the Argonne, the fourth German army was pushed back to the north of the Troisfontaines forest.

"The fifth German army, after attempting a very serious effort on our right wing, was thrown back. Our troops occupy Vassincourt."

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, Sept. 12.—It was officially announced here this afternoon that the Germans have evacuated Vitry-Le-Francois, where they were very heavily entrenched. Their retirement is said to have been so precipitate that they abandoned a large quantity of war materials.

Most insignificant in the statement however, is the announcement that the German left wing, in the region of the Argonne forest is now falling back. Heretofore the German left has held its own, and at times has

Rush Aid to France

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The Rome correspondent of the Evening Star wires that Austrian reinforcements are being rushed from Prague to aid the Germans, who are now being hard pressed in France. If the Star's report is true, it would indicate that the Germans in France are in a worse state than the news obtainable would indicate.

RUSSIANS CLAIM 125,000 AUSTRIANS DEAD OR CAPTURED

Eighty Thousand Prisoners Taken During Operations in Galicia Is Astounding Assertion

RUSSIANS FOUGHT DESPERATELY

But Tomaszow Was Taken in Determined Charge and Gen. Dakl Is in Peril

PETROGRAD, Sept. 12.—The war office announces that the efforts of Gen. Von Auffenberg to reorganize his fleeing forces in Galicia have failed and that the Austrians are still in full retreat. The total losses of the Austrians in the last two days are declared to total 125,000 of whom 80,000 were taken prisoners. It is declared that so many Austrians have been taken prisoners that the problem of caring for them is a most serious one. It has been necessary to detail additional troops to guard them until they can be sent to the interior concentration camps.

Charge Was Desperate

The occupation of Tomaszow entailed a desperate charge by the Russian forces on a strongly entrenched position. The Austrians, heavily reinforced by the Germans, fought desperately, but were badly cut up and forced to retire in the utmost confusion. The Russians took many prisoners here, including two generals of divisions. The Germans and Austrians who were driven from Tourbine and Opole in Russian Poland, are still being carried by strong bodies of cossack cavalry.

Army is Vast

The Austrian-German center in Galicia is now reported to be near the junction of the Vistula and San rivers and it is admitted that during the last twenty-four hours they have been heavily reinforced. It is estimated that 600,000 additional Russian troops have been sent forward, and that the total strength of the Russian armies in the field in Galicia and Russian Poland exceeds 1,250,000.

Regiments Wiped Out

It was stated that in the last engagement in the vicinity of Gorodek only thirty men survived out of nine Hungarian regiments which were attacked by three cossack regiments. The Russian general advance continues, Petrokoff and Teznstoeff having been occupied. It is stated that Russian armies are now being aligned for a movement against Breslau and Posen.

In addition it is declared the driving movement of the Russians against the Austrian main army has resulted in the complete cutting off of the Austrian left wing, commanded by Gen. Dakl and that its capture or utter destruction is now considered certain.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 12.—John P. Little, arrested here today by a Pinkerton detective, is being held awaiting the arrival of authorities from St. Louis, where he is wanted for the theft of $700 worth of jewelry from the Weidlick Jewelry company, and $2,500 in bank drafts.

KING ALBERT TO DIRECT HIS MEN

Will Dictate Maneuvers of Belgium Troops Who Have Assumed the Offensive; Floods a Surprise

ANTWERP, Sept. 12.—King Albert has gone to the front to direct the Belgian troops who are assuming the offensive all along the line. The Germans have been compelled to abandon all of their efforts to besiege this city. The opening of the dykes and the flooding of the lowlands was a complete surprise to the Germans. They fled, abandoning their artillery, which was completely mired. At many points the gunners slashed the traces of their horses and used them to escape, leaving guns, ammunition wagons and transports of all sorts behind in the water.

Many Germans were drowned, so fast was the onrush of the water. The dyke gates have now been closed and the German guns will be recovered by the Belgians.

There has been serious fighting in the vicinity of Gremberger and Termonde. At the latter place the Germans were defeated with very heavy losses. Before they retired they pillaged the houses and then burned the city. Only about 400 houses remain standing. In addition, the town burgomeister and many of the leading citizens were taken prisoners and sent to Germany.

The provinces of Antwerp and Limberg are now reported entirely clear of the enemy. It is reported here that strong British detachments have moved eastward from Ostend and have attacked the Germans moving south to the aid of the German right wing, which is in serious difficulties to the north of Paris.

SUN SPOTS VISIBLE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The general cold wave probably is the result of the appearance of the remarkable sun spots just discovered by the United States naval observatory, officials stated today. Each of the spots is 25,000 miles in diameter and should be plainly visible to the unaided eyes through shaded or smoked glass when the weather is clear.

SLEEP IN CHURCHES

PARIS—The French soldiers are partial to churches as sleeping places. The troops are sleeping in churches throughout the war zone. They say they can get more air there than in stables.

WOMEN WATCH BATTLES

OSTEND—When fighting was general about Brussels, smart women of the Belgian capital motored out to watch battles in the cool of the afternoon as though going to the races.

MISSISSIPPI "PORK" CUT TWO MILLIONS

Friends of Bill Lop Big Sum Off Appropriation for Father of Waters

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. — The rivers and harbors "pork barrel" bill was trimmed $18,500,000 by its "friends" on the senate committee, at a series of meetings ending today. Senator Simmons, leader of the friends of the bill, admitted that opposition to the measure had not been dissipated by the drastic cuts made, but said that the total of the bill was now $34,000,000 instead of $53,000,000.

The largest single cut was in the Mississippi river appropriation, which was shaved from $8,000,000 to $6,000,000.

Contracts for $3,000,000 worth of improvements for the Ohio river, authorized in the bill as it was originally reported, were eliminated, as was an authorization of $2,600,000 for the improvement of the Columbia river.

FAST FADING IS HOPE FOR PEACE

"Our Life or Germany's" Says First Lord of the Admiralty in Speech in City of London

LONDON, Sept. 12.—That there is not the slightest hope for speedy peace is accepted everywhere in England today. There will be no compromise with Germany. This was made emphatically certain by no less a personage than Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty. His speech last night at the London Opera house is everywhere accepted as the final word of the government to the suggestions of compromise coming from the United States.

England will depend on her own resources to crush Germany. Kitchener has decided that a million men are to go to the continent. And in revealing this, Churchill also made it very clear that his own department, the navy, expects to end forever the menace to peace of a German navy.

The speech was the most notable yet delivered in the present war. There was no claim made of continuous sweeping victory. Instead the first lord warned that serious reverses must be expected and declared the government has made allowances for them.

"But it is our life or Germany's," he declared, "and upon that there must and can be no compromise or truce. We must go forth unflinchingly to the end."

Churchill revealed for the first time that workmen are being hurried night and day on all of the new warships that are being laid down. Every vessel building in an English yard, no matter for whom, has been taken over by the government and will be rushed into service with the war fleet immediately upon completion. And in the summer of 1915 we will have twenty-five army corps in fighting shape."

DANGER TO PARIS OVER CLAIM FRENCH

General Gallieni Maintains Germans Can Never Regain Ground They Have Lost

VON KLUCK NEAR ANNIHILATION

Outnumbered Two to One His Army Is Forced to Abandon Supplies; Retreat Almost a Rout

PARIS, Sept. 12.—The battle of the Marne marked the high tide of the German offense. This was the positive prediction of Gen. Gallieni, military governor of Paris, when I saw him today. He declared that the Germans can never recover the ground from which they are now being driven, and that all danger to Paris is over.

The general, usually a sphinx, was far from loquacious, but it was very evident from his manner that he believes the entire situation was changed when the army of the defense of Paris, of which he is commander, was detached and sent to the aid of the British-French lefa. The German right, under Gen. Von Kluck, had over-run its supporting center in rushing to Provins, the unexpectedly strong opposition encountered having held it back far to the north. Gen. Gallieni, realizing that the center was holding fast, had no hesitancy in withdrawing his army and sending it out from Paris to the east to aid the French-British forces.

Outnumbered two to one, Van Kluck was in grave danger for a time of being completely annihilated. As it was his army was forced to abandon much of its suplies and at certain points its retreat assumed the proportions of a rout. It is not yet in safety and there is a possibility that a good part of it will yet be cut off and forced to surrender.

The success that has so far attended the efforts of the army of Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm, which has enveloped Verdun and is operating south of that city, is easily explained here. It is pointed out that the kaiser detailed as aides to his heir the best strategists in the German army. In addition this army is admittedly the flower of the great German war machine. Reports are current here that the kaiser in person has been with the crown prince on several occasions, and that at all times he keeps in direct touch with him. Reports that the crown prince has been detached from his army and is now enroute to East Prussia are not credited here as it is believed he would be much more serviceable in France, all of his training having been for offfensive work against France.

It is now belileved certain that the reason for the strong attack now being made on Verdun by the army of the crown prince is the realization by the German general staff that they will be compelled to concentrate their effirts. The long line through northern France and then through Belgium takes too many men to hold. But if they can reduce Verdun, the Garmans will hold the entire line of the Meuse river and will be able to move their forces at will across the eastern French frontier. They also will gain possession of the railway lines that are so important in bringing up ammunition.

GERMANS DRIVING RUSSIANS OUT OF PRUSSIA SWIFTLY

Invaders Fall Back and Soon May Become Defenders Against German Invasion of Poland

VERDUN WILL FALL SHORTLY

German War Office Claims Success on Left and Center in France and Is Optimistic

BERLIN, Via The Hague, Sept. 12.—The Germans are driving the Russians before them out of East Prussia according to an official announcement made at the war office today. The German reinforcements have clashed with the Russian advance and the latter has retired in disorder in the direction of the frontier. German troops, co-operating with the Austrians, have checked the Russian advance from Lemberg and are now pushing them back in general direction of that city. Germans and Austrians are again in Russian Poland in strong force and the situation in the eastern theatre of war is described as very much improved from the German-Austrian viewpoint. A strong force has been sent to attack the Russians who have been besieging Konigsberg and the announcement that the city has been relieved is expected momentarily.

The war office made no morning announcement regarding the progress of the battle in the west. It was announced late last night that the German success in the cented and on the left wing continued. The attack on the strong fortress of Verdun is proseeding satisfactorily and its reduction and capture are considered certain.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—"General Hindenberg's victorious progress in East Prussia continues," the Berlin foreign office notified the German embassy today. In a radiogram it stated that "the Russians attempted to relieve the pressure on the defeated left wing, but were defeated."

The Russians attempted, the radiogram stated, to check the Germans by launching the twenty-second army corps against Gen. Hindenberg's flank. According to official reports this was defeated.

"In this encounter, several batteries were captured from the main Russian forces."

Fight on Today

At eleven o'clock today the Germans and allies were "presumably continuing the struggle," another wireless message from Berlin notified the German embassy here this afternoon.

"The Saxon army under Gen. Von Hausen seems to have fought brilliantly," the radiogram said, the Emperor William telegraphed congratulations to the king of Saxony upon the "splendid achievements."

Liege Assailants Decorated

The German kaiser awarded 110 decorations of iron crosses to the the 83rd German infantry for gallantry in storming Liege, a third wireless message declared.

That the financial situation in Germany was entirely satisfactory, was stated in this dispatch. It declared that the weekly report of the reichsbank is the "best since the outbreak of the war."

"Whys" of European War Moves Explained By Military Expert

BY J. W. T. MASON
(Former European Manager of the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—11 A. M.—It is now apparent that the primary cause of the confusion into which the German plan of campaign before Paris has been thrown, was due to the German right wing overrunning the rest of the kaiser's advancing front.

The news that the German right reached Provins gives the key to the mystery. This town is fifty miles southeast of Paris, and dominates the highways which the German center and left would have used in proceeding to envelop Paris from the south.

The German right got to Provins too soon. Its phenomenal speed from the Belgian frontier to Paris seems to have been unchecked after reaching the capital and carried it down the roads across the Marne river to join the Germans coming from the northeast, at Provins. But, the Germans from the northeast did not arrive. They were held in check in the Catalaurnian fields district, where Attila and his Huns were defeated in the fifth century.

The speedy German right, therefore, became isolated. The Paris garrison emerged and fell on its flank, and during the present week, it has been forced back until now it is fifty miles northeast of Paris, near Soissons.

That the defeat of the German right wing was due to deep strategy by the allies is refuted by the frank admissions of the Paris and London official reports, earlier in the week, that the movements of the Germans were very puzzling. They were puzzling because they constituted a serious error in calculating the time necessary for Germany's center and left armies to swing around toward Paris. Somebody among the German higher officials seems to have blundered badly and German strategy is now seriously affected for it must rearrange its objectives.

The German attack on Verdun is an attempt to open the doorway into France from the east, the alternative invasion route to the unfortunately chosen way through Belgium. Verdun is the northernmost point of the famous fortified eastern frontier barrier that runs along the Meuse forty miles to Toul, and after a forty mile strategic opening to Epinal continues in a series of strong forts along the Moselle river to the Swiss frontier. The capture of Verdun, if it were followed by the occupation of the other military frontier works to Toul, might seriously interfere with the French invasion of Lorraine, and would be of great benefit to German lines of communication. The nearest railway approach from Germany to the present field of operations runs through Verdun.

Russia's effort to recommence her march to Berlin has again met with a reserve. The Germans are shoving the Slavs out of East Prussia at about the same speed that they themselves are retiring in France. The battle of Lyck, reported as an important German victory, occurred only fifteen miles inside the East Prussian boundary, and Russian Poland is again in danger of serious invasion. The confidence of the German general staff in their ability to hold off Russia's advance for an appreciable time, with second line troops, seems to have been well founded—much more so than the belief that the offensive in France could be continued indefinitely.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

ENGLAND—It is officially announced that the British pursuit of the retreating right wing continues and that the Germans badly exhausted, are losing many men captured, as well as guns and munitions of war. First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill declared England will maintain at least one million men in the field and that there can be no peace uneil Germany is completely crushed.

FRANCE—The Germans are still being forced back all along the line. The French have captured enormous quantities of supplies and taken thousands of prisoners. All of the artillery of a single army corps has been captured.

BELGIUM—King Albert has gone to the front in command of the Belgian forces which have assumed the offensive against the Germans in northern Belgium. Ghent has been reoccupied by the Belgians and the German troops which were threatening Antwerp have retired to the south.

RUSSIA—It is announced that the Austrian army of Gen. Dankl has been cut off by the Russians who are continuing their successes in Galicia, having assumed the offensive again with a largely increased army. The Austrians are deported to have sufered heavy losses of both men and war material.

GERMANY—The official war office announcement declares that the Germans have assumed the offensive in East Prussia and that the Russians are being driven back with heavy losses. It is stated that a force has been sent to riase the siege on Konigsberg by the Russians.

SERVIA AND MONTENEGRO—Servian troops have crossed the Danube near Belgrade to co-operate with the Servian forces that occupied Semlin. The combined Servian-Montenegrin armies are reported closing in on Serajevo, capital of Bosnia.

GREECE—Reports from Rome say that Greece has given England a naval base within striking distance of the Turkish naval base and that the British Medietrranean fleet is near there ready, if Turkey enters the war, to crush the Turkish navy.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — How the Chipmunk Got The Peanut.

He Seemed Surprised When He Couldn't Pick It Up.

"HOW is this, sonny?" asked daddy as Jack and Evelyn stood at his knee and clamored for a story. "I see that you didn't pull those weeds that I asked you to pull."

"Oh," cried Jack, "it was awful hard work, and I was tired. Tell us our story, daddy," he coaxed.

"Very well, sonny; I'll tell a story just to you tonight. Once upon a time a chipmunk lived in a wood. Near the edge of the wood was a big white farmhouse in which lived a little girl and boy.

"The chipmunk grew very tame and used to run right up on the piazza, and there he would sit up on his haunches and beg, with his little black nose all wrinkly and his little black eyes all twinkly.

"He would pick up the peanuts thrown to him and stuff them into the pouches at each side of his cheeks till you'd think the little fellow would have burst his face. One of the children said to her mamma, 'But won't he make himself sick eating so much at a time?' 'Oh, he doesn't eat them!' her mother replied. 'He stores them away in a secret place in the woods for the winter.'

"Now, what do you think, children? That chipmunk grew so tame that he would take peanuts out of those children's hands or he would climb into their pockets for them or even take the nuts away when they held them between their teeth.

"He was pretty saucy, too, and when one of the children would hang on to the peanut, as they did sometimes, and wouldn't give it to him he would chatter away angrily and nip his tormentor's fingers with his little sharp teeth till they were glad to let go.

"But the children's daddy enjoyed a joke. So he said one day, 'I'll give this chipmunk something to do.' He took a peanut and drove tacks around it to hold it down to the floor, and all over it he wound string and tied it to the tacks. Then they all waited to see what the chipmunk would do.

"Before long up came the chipmunk and saw that peanut laying on the floor. He seemed surprised when he couldn't pick it up and looked it all over, with his head on one side like a bird. Then he carefully bit all the string away, but still he couldn't get the nut. And what do you think he did? Why, he broke the shell and took out the meat and put it in his pouch and carried it away.

"Now, don't you kiddies think that chipmunk was pretty persevering? And, Jack, don't you think you can keep right on pulling weeds even if it is a little tiresome?"

MAURER TELLS OF WAR TIMES ABROAD

Local Physicians Details the Hardships Encountered After Formal Declaration of Hostilities

TRIP ACROSS WAS HORRIBLE

American Steamer Filthy from Top to Bottom; Passengers, Including Millionaires, Protest

Dr. A. Maurer, who has just returned from Europe, gives the following information of conditions prior to and during the first month of the war, also of his trip over as a steerage passenger.

Some two weeks before war was declared, all medical and surgical clinics in Berlin were closed, geheimraths, professors, dozents, instructors and assistants as well as those in private practice under the age of fifty years having orders to be in readiness to join their respective regiments wherever stationed or mobilized.

As soon as war was declared, all patients, medical and surgical, able to be moved, were taken out of the hospitals to make room for the sick and wounded soldiers. To what extent this was carried out, may be imagined when one hospital of 140 beds was cleared of all patients but four in six days.

That the feeling of the German people was against war, was shown by the social democrats who marched nightly, accompanied by thousands of others Unter den Linden singing: "We do not want war, we do not want war." The crowd though orderly, was kept on the move by a row of mounted police extending from house to house including sidewalks. Upon reaching side streets the crowd was dispersed to prevent gatherings and demonstrations.

Banks Refuse Gold

For some weeks previous to this time, all banks refused to pass out any gold. In order to exchange currency for gold, one was obliged to go to the Reichsbank (National depository.) Ten days before the trouble commenced the large department stores, Werthe-in-Tietze (like the Boston store and Fair) were ordered to close their grocery department to the public.

The Kaiser upon his return from the Norwegian coast, where he was spending his vacation, moved from Potsdam, his summer residence, to the Imperial Palace in Berlin. He was given a warm reception as he was driven Unter den Linden and the general opinion was that the Kaiser would be the one person who would prevent war.

Berlin has quite a Russian colony. Their headquarters are opposite the Friedrichstrasse banhoff at the Hotel Metropole. During the excitement, I saw a large crowd following a Russian. Some called him vile names and even spat upon him. I saw him go up to a policeman and ask for protection but the latter only laughed and the poor fellow only escaped from the crowd by entering a hotel.

Germans have a mortal fear of Russians and they with other nations realize, that should Germany be defeated, all must rely on Germany to keep the Russians in check.

A week before the war the police placed notices advising all foreigners to leave Germany. Later they gave a personal order to vacate in twenty-four hours.

Goes to Hotel

I left my pension and took up quarters at a hotel near the Friedrichstrasse banhoff. The station platform was stacked with trunks as high as one could place them. Thousands of trunks were piled out side the depot on the streets. I took my trunks to the American Express and stored them, bought a suit case and filled it, and then took a taxi and drove four stations beyond Friedrichstrasse in order to secure a place in one of the cars. When we finally arrived at Friedrichstrasse there was a perfect mob all trying to get into the cars at once. Women gave their hand baggage to the depot dieners, so they could stand a better chance to get into the cars and in this way many lost all their luggage, as the dieners were unable to follow them through the seething mass of human beings.

The first hundred and fifty miles we made in the same number of minutes, but after that we were stopped every little while and we lived in the expectation of being obliged to leave the train at any minute, anywhere.

All through Germany and Holland we saw soldiers guarding bridges, culverts, telegraph lines, cars on sidetracks, etc. In fact we were never out of the sight of a uniform.

Usually at all stations you will find vendors selling eatables and drinks, but they had been all ordered off, so we were obliged to go hungry for the best part of twenty-four hours. Aside from this and the fact that we were dumped out at the border of Holland and forced to wait four hours for a Holland train, we suffered little inconvenience.

I was amused to read in a London paper an interview with two women who were in the same compartment with me all the way from Berlin to the Hook of Holland. The paper stated that German officers came into our compartment, sat beside them and insulted them. The facts are, no officers even came near our compartment the entire day. Our only experience was with trainmen, who ordered us to pull the curtain in certain places where the troops were mobilizing or fortifying. We were also ordered not to use our cameras and in some instances they were confiscated.

Tourists Are Thick

Tourists were pouring into England from all parts of the Continent at the time England declared war against Germany. It was estimated that there were from twenty to thirty thousand Americans alone, all anxious to get back home. Practically all of them had engaged and paid for passage on the various liners. Their funds, as a rule were letters of credit and travelers checks. This was during the weeks the banks were closed. A five pound Bank of England note, then the smallest currency, was worthless. You couldn't even buy a cup of coffee with one.

In an attempt to secure change, people would go to the various stores and make small purchases, tendering a note. It was invariably returned with the statement that silver and gold were the only legal tender. The same state of affairs existed in restaurants and hotels.

Those carrying American Express Travelers' checks saved the day, and kept hundreds from going hungry. The American Express company—on Monday—a legal holiday, had their entire force busy paying out in gold up to twenty or thirty dollars to all carrying their checks. There were hundreds of repeaters and in this way the tourists distributed enough money to their friends and the needy to insure at least one meal a day for three days. This company was the only one to honor their checks.

The American Express company also exchanged American money at face value, whide others gave out 87½c on a dollar.

Railroad Man Aids

On the evening of the third day, Mr. Thornton, (an American), manager of the Great Northern, sent his representatives to the various hotels and to steamships offices and announced that his company would pay in gold to the amount of fifty dollars to all who had Travelers' checks or letters of credit as long as the company had the money.

Stranded Americans had a meeting at the Hotel Savoy, formed an association, elected officers, appointed committees and perfected an organization to assist all distressed Americans in such manners as telegraphing for funds, finding their luggage, locating lost friends and securing transportation. Daily bulletins were issued of all arrivals.

On account of the danger of taking passage on any but those liners flying an American flag, the American Steamship company's office was besieged by thousands clamoring for reservations. This company at once raised their rates two pounds up on each ticket, their excuse for this being an effort to keep the tickets out of the hands of scalpers.

The following will show how absurd the excuse. The American association had arranged with the company that no ticket could be transferable and be honored by the steamship company unless with an O. K. from the transportation committee of the association or by the company itself. In that way only those having passports or credentials showing that they were citizens of the United States could obtain tickets.

Accommodations Poor

In securing accommodations we were assured that although going third class (steerage), we were assured that we would be allowed the freedom of the boat, and be given the same food as the second class passengers, that our quarters would be specially prepared, and the only difference would be in the location and furnishing of our sleeping apartments.

On arriving in Liverpool, I went directly to the steamship office to be assigned sleeping quarters. The agent accommodating placed me in a room with three others. I remonstrated mildly, but after he had looked me over critically and informed me that my unknown playmates would be my equals if not my superiors, as none but Americans had tickets, I thanked him and gratefully went on my way, prepared for most enjoyable companionship.

We were rushed on board the ship just as cattle are loaded on a car, and just as promptly pushed on to our respective apartments.

There all too soon I found the passenger list included 35 Indians, (Miller's Ranch 101), a number of negroes, some Portuguese, Russians, Germans, South Americans and in fact any one having the price of a ticket. My own "superior" companions proved to be a Russian, a stranded vaudeville actor, and an elderly man who after stumbling over twenty drunken sailors to get to our apartment, lost courage at the sight of it and fled.

Boat Filthy

Such filth I have never seen in the poorest of tenement houses. This applies not only to the crew, cooks, waiters, etc., but also to the cooking utensils and the food. Mattresses, instead of being new or fumigated as required by law, were soiled and objectionable in every way. Rats and cockroaches infested our quarters. Utensils containing vomited matter were allowed to remain in the companionway from the time we left Queenstown until we arrived in New York.

Women and children were placed in quarters by the side of squaws. The women's toilet room was only the size of one on our Pullman train. The bowls in the toilet room were used as a laundry by the Indian squaws for baby's linens.

Soon after putting out to sea nearly every one on the boat including the captain and crew were taken sick and at first the water was blamed, but later it was attributed to the food.

Indignation Meetings

Unable to stand conditions the third class passengers held an indignation meeting, demanding sheets for women and children, clean towels and the privilege of using and sleeping on the deck. At this meeting were present several millionaires, professors, a number of physicians, dentists and lawyers as well as an Episcopal bishop from Little Rock, Arkansas, who by the way was a delegate to the peace conference. Women were enthusiastic in their demands and the business men present made many suggestions.

Resolutions were adopted and handed to the captain. Both captain and steward declared they were doing the best they could and that the company had made promises they were unable to carry out. He did, however, furnish as many sheets and towels as he could.

A great majority of steerage passengers slept on deck, on chairs and on the floor and suffered accordingly from cold as we took the northern course. Electric lights were kept burning all night in steerage, presumably for the benefit of rats and cockroaches. I knew the face of every cockroach in my cabin.

As an appetizer for meals, the dish washing was conducted near the center of the dining room. This consisted of one short dip into a large pan of greasy water, one slap on the face with a dirty towel and a parting slap on the back with a dirtier rag, then they were carried to the table by a filty waiter.

My food for the entire trip of eight days, consisted of one small piece of head cheese (which made me deathly sick), four apples, three oranges, four crackers, known as English biscuits, one Kippered herring to whet my appetite, one boiled potato, two ancient eggs, Chinese type, one-half of a raw carrot, and a dish of ice cream—my Sunday dinner.

Gave up Cash

At Liverpool I gave up all my cash excepting my German gold to a fellow passenger who was short of funds, thinking that of course I could easily cash my International company checks, issued by the company upon whose steamer I was sailing. Imagine my surprise when the purser refused to cash a ten dollar check issued by his own company for which they had taxed me fifty cents on each hundred dollars I carried.

I landed in New York broke, notwithstanding my belt full of German gold upon which I had been obliged to sleep for many an uncomfortable night, several hundred dollars worth of International Mercantile Marine checks, as well as a pocket full of German paper money and a handful of German coins.

An obliging taxicab driver loaned me money enough to pay the man who carried my baggage from the wharf and drove me to the hotel where I was able to obtain some real American money in exchange for my International checks.

A colleague of mine with his wife and children, the latter aged one and one-half and two and one-half years, were held up at V., a small town near Liege for ten days, during the time the Germans bombarded the place. They were without funds except Austrian money, which was worthless. The Salvation Army gave them food and allowed them to sleep in their quarters. The doctor had unfortunately neglected having a passport. After the Germans entered the town he made the acquaintance of German officers, who, upon being satisfied, let the doctor in as an American citizen, assisted him in hiring a one horse delivery wagon and accompanied him and his family sixteen miles to a railway station, giving him information how to pass when challenged. They also equipped him with dodgers protesting against the libelous tales of mistreatment of foreigners.

About seventy per cent of steerage passengers slept on deck.

ENLISTED MEN ARE GIVEN GOOD CHANCE

No Longer Necessary to Go to Annapolis to Get Commission in U. S. Navy

Through the naval appropriation act, word of the passing of which was received by Recruiting Officer H. C. Fredericks, at the Federal building today, any La Crosse boy wishing to enter the navy with the chance for advancement to a line officership may now do so without an appointment to Annapolis.

Desire for the passing of this act has been seen all over the country. In the past, a commission as an officer in the United States navy could only be gained through an appointment to the naval university.

The naval appropriation act provides that the secretary of the navy may appoint fifteen men to Annapolis annually from the enlisted men.

From Their Point of View

"I suppose," said the angry husband, "you are satisfied now that you have made an exhibition of yourself in that outlandish new gown"—

"O, but John, I have had the loveliest time. You can"—

"Um—huh! Everybody stared, I suppose?"

"O, everybody!"

"I only wish you might have heard their remarks"—

"Why I did—two or three, but they weren't about my gown"—

"What then, pray?"

"They simply said they wondered what kind of a husband I had."

Too Impatient.

Sciatica,
Its Cause and Cure

"Sciatica," according to Dr. Twittey of Columbia, "is a disease due either to pressure of tumors on the sciatic nerve, somewhere in the pelvis or in the nerve trunk or to neuralgia, and it is characterized by severe pain. It very often follows lumbago: some cases are caused by impacted feces pressing upon the nerve. Sciatica attacks women more often than men, children being very seldom affected, and between the ages of 30 and 50 the disease is most common. Gout and rheumatism seem to be the active causes of the disease, which is therefore called sciatic rheumatism.

The treatment is varied and many remedies have been tried without success. Rest is the best thing for the trouble, and the more profound it is, the better, and if possible have the limb encased in a splint, so as to prevent any motion. The pain is the most important thing to relieve. Counter irritants, mustard plasters, iodine, etc., have been tried with more or less temporary benefit. Cold applications have proven of value. However, I have found Anti-kamnia Tablets to give the most prompt and lasting relief. Two A-K tablets every three hours is the dose which has proven satisfactory in the most severe cases." These tablets may be obtained at all druggists. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are unexcelled for headaches, neuralgia, and all pains.

A "Helping Hand" Extended to the Middle Aged Woman

THERE comes a time in every woman's life when her organism undergoes an important change. This is a critical period. It is a time when a woman needs her full health and strength. For your own sake you should anticipate this turning point.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

has been recommended for over forty years as a tonic for women who are about to experience "the turn of life." It is helpful in the equalization of the circulation of the blood and in regulating the action of the bowels. Nervousness and low spirits disappear. Happiness and contentment take their place.

The latest in medical science is contained in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser—new and revised edition of 1008 pages, only 31c. Address Dr. Pierce's Invalid's Hotel, Buffalo

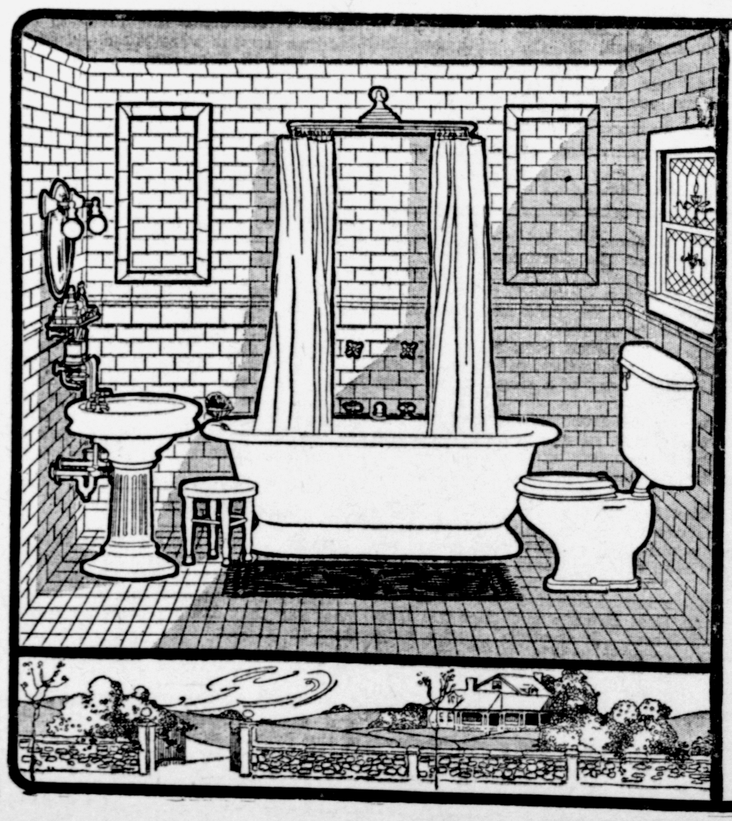
Idleness and Poverty.

To be idle and to be poor have always been reproaches, and therefore every man endeavors with his utmost care to hide his poverty from others and his idleness from himself.—Samuel Johnson.

We scorn ordinary puzzles but the average map can give us a headache.



DESIGN and DURABILITY — TRADE Standard MARK — UNSURPASSED

Since it is a necessity, most desirable, and will last a lifetime, —isn't it thoughtless not to get it NOW instead of later?

A "Standard" Modern Bathroom should be considered in exactly that way. You will not question that a sanitary bathroom is a necessity, so considered by all who have regard for cleanliness and refinement. The fixtures are guaranteed for a definite number of years and there is no reason for thinking that they will not last a great while longer: so it is not then a matter of economy to get the equipment at once.

An estimate on such equipment, correctly installed with first class workmanship, will be given upon request.

"YOUTH WILL BE SERVED"

"Youth will be served."

In Chicago yesterday a boy in knickerbockers, fourteen years of age, won the city golf championship.

In La Crosse the youngest golfer of them all, George Van Auken, is setting a pace beyond the stride of his best competitors.

It is a good sign of the things on the more serious side of life that the coming generation will accomplish. They have the ambition and the "punch." Young blood, if it is good blood, knows no defeat, and its very confidence is half the battle. We may as well be content to be followers, we elders.

"Youth will be served."

HAVE A BACK-BONE

A timely word of warning to progressive republicans is that they must not take too seriously the reverses at the recent primary election.

It is hardly a progressive characteristic to flunk at the first setback, and this is the first one in fourteen years. Surely our courage should be equal to the situation.

It must be remembered that but a small portion of the citizens voted, and that had the progressives, like the stalwarts, had but one candidate for each office in the field they would have carried every nomination. More, it must be remembered that the stay-at-home vote was the farmer vote—always reliably progressive.

A considerable number of progressives went off on the taxation tangent, but they will come back. Their going was attributable to the weak-kneed policy of admitting much that was not true about taxation, of weakening defense by making concessions not warranted by the facts.

These progressives, who have taken the stalwart word that they will not undo the sound things accomplished in Wisconsin, will return in a panic when it finally dawns upon them that, as the Janesville Gazette (stalwart) frankly puts it, the mission of the stalwart ticket is:

"* * * * to undo the work of the reform element that has so long mismanaged affairs."

Indeed, the progressive movement may be made sounder than ever by a slight defeat calculated to make us forget our own little differences and get together. And it will be made stronger—unless we are men whose back-bones can be coiled up on a puckering string.

A BILL NO PRESIDENT WOULD VETO

Manager Koppelberger will not complain that we violate a confidence when we say that the bill at the Majestic theater is uniformly as clever and entertaining as any vaudeville offering it has been our fortune to witness. We have not the manager's welfare in mind in thus intruding a "press notice" upon the exclusive territory of the editorial page; rather we speak in the hope that friends who might miss it did the bill not have the prestige of the editorial "we," may take a "sure tip" from us that the performance is worth the time and money. Particularly is the show unique in that there is not in it a single number that one would cut out as lowering the average of the program.

A LESSON IN THE COST OF HAVING

In yesterday's "Quips and Cranks" column appeared a story with a moral. The moral needs emphasis. The yarn is in the form of an interview with Congressman W. H. Murray, who had been spending his vacation with a New England farmer. Mr. Murray began:

"The progress of the country is astonishing. The farmer of today drives his motorcar, smokes his cigaret in a long amber tube, and, over his after-dinner coffee listens to Caruso singing the Star Song from Tosca on the phonograph, or hears his wife rendering on the player-piano Grieg's 'Peer Gynt' suite."

It is this change in farm life, which has its counterpart change in city life, that has done much to augment the "high cost of living" and which gave the epigrammatist justification for replying that, really, it is "the cost of high living." It extends to everything—this cost; it extends to government. And just as the farmer gets better living conditions for the money so spent, so does the citizen get better government for the increased cost.

Well, Hon. Murray complimented the farmer host on his home life, and the latter smilingly replied with the following yarn:

"In the general store of the village the general storekeeper took a chew of tobacco and said:

" 'Thet thar new preacher of ourn is certainly a dude. Gosh hang my buttons ef he don't comb out his whiskers every mornin'. I got it straight from his hired gal.'

"Everybody stared at the general storekeeper in astonishment before this news. Then the old squire chuckled and said:

" 'Well, by crinus, I don't see how he stands the torture of it. I comb out my whiskers every Sunday and danged ef the knots don't make me plumb near cuss and swear.' "

Herein comes the stalwart analogy. The reactionaries in Wisconsin promise us a resumption of the "good old days." In other words, if they win they agree that in the future the state government shall comb its whiskers only once a week.

Gentlemen, the snarls will be painful.

Early to bed and early to rise would put the theatrical industry entirely out of business.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

The Point of View

Some years ago my father drove an ancient piebald mare,
And when he met a motor car he'd scowl at it and glare.
Would he turn out? No, not a bit.
He'd try to hog the road.
When they would ask him to give way, he'd yell, "I've got a load.'
His hatred for the gas machines was unrelenting quite.
It was a mania with him; he talked
it day and night.
He said that any feller who would drive one was a fool;
For father was a backward man, who followed the old school.

But things have changed since then a bit. Although for years he roared.
About the gol-dum devil carts, he's gone and bought a Ford.
He beats it round the countryside at thirty miles an hour,
And when an old horse heaves in sight he crowds on all his power.
He nearly busts with anger when he wants the right of way,
And hollers: "For the love of Mike, lay over there, you jay!"
He's got the latest fol-de-rols, green goggles and the like;
He is the greatest motor fiend who ambles down the pike.
It's just the same old story. Yes, indeed; it's nothing new,
The war of car and horse depends upon the point of view.

Very Precise

The conversation at a recent social session turned to precise people, when Congressman James Monahan of Minnesota told of the experience of a doctor in a New England town.

One day a man called on the doctor and gave him a detailed account of his kinks, twists and distresses. "What do you think, doctor?" asked the patient when the physician had concluded his examination. "Would you advise me to saturate myself with medicine?"

"No," answered the doctor, "what you need more than anything else is a tonic in the shape of fresh air."

"All right, doctor," returned the patient, thoughtfully, "but would you mind telling me what is the shape of fresh air."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

By Ticket Only

Mrs. Lovelace had a new maid. She was not quick to learn, but what she did learn fixed itself solidly in her blonde head. In particular she was taught to take the visiting cards of Mrs. Lovelace's not infrequent callers.

One day appeared a certain Mrs. Furbelow, a crony and familiar friend of Mrs. Lovelace, and one not accustomed to the formality of cards in that house. The new maid refused to let her in. She blocked the door with her substantial bulk and spoke firmly.

"You must give up your ticket first," she said.

Nothing to Do Till Tomorrow

The life of an editor is one path of sweet-scented blushing roses. If you don't believe it, ask any editor. All he has got to do is work. One of the esteemed weekly editors sizes up the matter as follows:

"To run a newspaper all a fellow has to do is to be able to write poems, discuss the tariff and money questions, umpire a baseball game, report a wedding, saw wood, describe a fire so that the readers will shed their wraps, make $1 do the work of $10, shine at a dance, measure calico, abuse the liquor habit, test whiskey, subscribe to charity, go without meals, attack free silver, wear diamonds, invent advertisements, sneer at snobbery, overlook scandal, appraise babies, delight pumpkin raisers, minister to the afflicted, heal the disgruntled, fight to a finish, set type, hold opinions, sweep the office, speak at the prayer meetings and stand in with everybody and everything."

A Futility

Theodore P. Shonts was talking about the ruin brought on a great corporation by reckless and, indeed, criminal transactions of its directors.

"Some are blaming one man," he said, "and some are blaming another, but if the money is not recovered, all this blame-laying will be futile."

He smiled and added:

"Who cares whether or not the receiver is as bad as the thief? They don't either of them feel as bad as the loser."

Why She Smiled

The senator and the major were walking up the avenue. The senator was more than middle-aged and considerably more than fat, and, dearly as the major loved him, he also loved his joke.

The senator turned with a pleased expression on his benign countenance and said, "Major did you see that pretty girl smile at me?"

"Oh, that's nothing," replied his friend. "The first time I saw you I laughed out loud!"—Harper's Monthly.

Bird Houses.

Martins, bluebirds, and wrens do not take kindly to houses made of new, bright wood. Their instincts lead them to prefer the places which more nearly resemble the insides of decayed trees, in which their ancestors have nested from time immemorial. Build your birdhouses to suit the birds rather than to please your own tastes.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

He held out his hand to Lahoma who had risen swiftly at these signs of departure. "God bless you, little girl," he said cheerily. "A man's fortunate who finds such cases along his desert-trail!"

It was not Bill's gruffness, but Lahoma's charm that warned him to flee lest he break his promise to her guardians.

"But you can't go, yet," cried Lahoma, not taking his hand, "there are a thousand things I want to do with you that I've never had a chance to do with anybody else—strolling, for instance. Come and stroll—I'll show you about the cove. Brick and Bill don't know anything about strolling as they do in pictures. Hold out your arm with a crook in it and I'll slip my hand just inside where you'll hold it soft and warm like a bird in its nest. . . . Isn't this noble? And I holds back—excuse me—I hold back my skirts with my other hand, and this is the way we stroll, like an engraving out of the history of Louis the Fourteenth's court. Do, oh, do!" Her bright eyes glowed into his like beckoning stars.

"We stroll," he gravely announced, responding to the pressure of her fingers, but at the same time feeling somewhat guilty as Bill rolled his eyes fearfully at Brick.

When they were a few yards from the trees Lahoma whispered: "Make for the other side of Turtle Hill. I want to feel grown up when I do any strolling, but I'm nothing but a little barefooted kid when Brick and Bill are looking at me!"

Hidden by the shoulder of the granite hill island she stopped, withdrew her hand, and stood very straight as she said, with breathless eagerness, "Answer me quick! Wilfred, ain't I old enough to be a sweetheart?"

"Oh, Lahoma," he protested warmly, "please don't think of it. Don't be anybody's until—until I say the word. You couldn't understand such matters, dear, you wouldn't know the—the proper time. I'll tell you when the time comes."

She looked at him keenly. "Am I to wait for a time, or for a person? I wish you'd never met that girl back East; I think you'd have filled the bill for me, because, having always lived here in the mountains, I've not learned to be particular. Not but what I've seen lots of trappers and squatters in my day, but I never wanted to stroll with them. I don't see why that eastern girl ever turned you loose from her trap. I think a man's a very wonderful thing; especially a young man—don't you, Wilfred?"

"Not half so wonderful as you, Lahoma." His voice vibrated with sudden intensity. "There's your wonderful hair, like light shining through a brown veil . . . and your eyes where your soul keeps her lights flashing when all the rest of you is in twilight . . . and your hands and feet, four faithful little guides to the wonderful treasures that belong only to maidenhood . . and your mouth, changing with your thoughts—an adorable little thermometer, showing how high the smiles have risen in your heart; a mouth so pure and sweet—"

"Hey!" shouted Bill Atkins, as he and Brick came around the angle of the hill. "Hi, there! You may call that strolling, but if so, it's because you don't know its true name, if you ask me!"

Wilfred came to himself with a sharp indrawing fo his breath. "Yes," he stammered, somewhat dizzily, "yes, I—I must be going, now."

She held his hand beseechingly. "But you'll come again, won't you? When I hold your hand, it's like grabbing at a bit of the big world."

"No, Lahoma, I'm not coming again." His look was long and steady, showing sudden purpose which concealed regret beneath a frank smile of liking.

She still held his hand, her brown eyes large with entreaty. "You will come again, Wilfred! You must come again! Don't mind Bill. I'll have a talk with him after you're gone. I'll send him over to the ranch after you. Just say you'll come again if I send for you."

"Of course he'll come, honey," said Brick, melted by the tears that sounded in her voice. "He won't get huffy over a foolish old codger like Bill Atkins. Of course he'll come again and tell you about street cars and lamp-posts. Let him go to his work now, he's been up all night, just to get a word with you. Let him go—he'll come back tomorrow, I know."

Wilfred turned to Brick and looked into his eyes as he slowly released Lahoma's hand.

"Oh!" said Brick, considerably disconcerted. "No, I reckon he won't come back, honey—yes, I guess he'll be busy the rest of the summer. Well, son, put 'er there—shake! I like you fine, just fine, and as you can't come here to see us no more, being so busy and—and otherwise elsewhere bound—I'm kinder sorry to see you go."

"Partings," said Bill, somewhat mollified, "are painful but necessary, else there wouldn't be any occasion for dentists' chairs."

"That's so," Brick agreed. "You called Lahoma an oasis. And what is an oasis? Something you come up to, and go away from, and that's the end of the story. You don't settle down and live at a spring just because it give you a drink when you was thirsty. A man goes on his way rejoicing, and Wilfred according."

Lahoma walked up to Wilfred with steady eyes. "Are you coming back to see me?" she asked gravely.

"No, Lahoma. At least not for a long, long time. I don't believe it's good for me to forget the life I've chosen, even for a happy hour. When I left the city, it was to drop out of the world—nobody knows what became of me, not even my brother. You've brought everything back, and that isn't good for my peace of mind and so—good-by!"

Tall and straight he stood, like a soldier whose duty it is to face defeat; and standing thus, he fastened his eyes upon her face as if to stamp those features in a last long look upon his heart.

SPOTLIGHTS

PROTECT TRAVELER

Vigilance against the artful and vicious white slaver, is soon to be systematically operated in every town and city of the United States and Canada, through the efforts of the Travelers' Aid society, an organization heartily endorsed by Virginia Brooks, author of "Little Lost Sister,' and which in turn endorsed Miss Brook's crusade against segregated vice districts.

The vigilance work of this important organization was clearly defined by Orrin C. Baker, national executive secretary, at a big "white slave" mass meeting held recently at Baltimore, Md.

He made it plain that the purpose of the society should not be to enter into vice crusades in any sense of the term, but to exercise a preventive influence upon young women which would keep them on the right path.

Aided 157,000 Persons

Since the organization of the work Mr. Baker declared that 157,000 persons had been assisted in this country. He said the agents had been particularly active at railway stations and steamboat wharves in stopping persons who intended to mislead girls and in assisting young women in finding proper homes and places to work.

Traps for Women

Many instances were given by the speaker to show that unprotected women, especially those coming to the large cities from the country to seek employment, were lured into cleverly laid traps, from which they could not escape.

The society is undenominational, and works upon the promise that every class of girl is apt to be deceived by vicious persons and statistics are produced to prove the assertion.

This attraction will be seen at the La Crosse Theater tonight and Sunday matinee and night.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

WARD DIVISION VOTED DOWN BY COMMON COUNCIL

Plan, Behind Which Some Claimed Political Motives, Beaten; Boundaries to Remain the Same

FIGHT OVER POOL HALL LICENSE

A. A. Bentley, Former Secretary of Board of Trade, Is Given Permit Over Bruno Breuer

MANY STREET IMPROVEMENTS

City Engineer Instructed to Get Estimates for Work, Total Expenses of Which Will Be $50,000.00

By a vote of 11 to 7—there were three absentees—the council last night killed Ald. Schneeberger's plan to place a portion of the present Eighth ward in the Twenty-first ward.

Debate on the re-districting scheme was thick and heavy and during it Ald. Schneeberger took occasion to deny that the division was prompted by a desire to eliminate Ald. Martin Rybold of the Twenty-first ward from the council.

Schneeberger presented figures to show that the ward is the largest in the city and that nearly one-tenth the population of La Crosse is within its boundaries.

To Repair Bridge.

Plans for the permanent improvement of the La Crosse wagon bridge, new sheer booms, and several blocks of sewers, to cost, in all, $29,000, were approved by the council last night.

The west approach of the wagon bridge is to be on a concrete pier with steel girders and brick roadway. The bridge is to be paved with creosote blocks on wooden stringers. The sheer-booms are to be of reinforced concrete.

The approaches of the West Channel bridge are to be repaired.

Bentley Gets License.

After being turned down by the council on his application for a pool room license on the North side, A. A. Bentley appeared in person before the council and was granted the permit.

Bruno Breuer was the original applicant. He was turned down, for the second time, last night, despite the fact that he presented a petition signed by nearly every business man on Rose street.

Breuer originally rented the building from Bentley, it is said. Mr. Bentley explained that he wished the license merely to protect a woman whose money is tied up in the fixtures.

Upon recommendation of the chief of police licenses will be granted to several dance halls, providing they make certain changes pointed out by him and which are necessary under the dance hall ordinance.

Turn Down Hanks.

Despite the fact that J. W. Hanks, local auditor, offered to audit the city books for fifty dollars less than the city has been paying, members of the council were so well satisfied with the work of the Frame, Dohert Company, that that concern was given the work. The Frame people's bid was $500.

The special street improvement committee through the council instructed the city engineer to make plans and prepare estimates for street improvement work. It is roughly estimated that the total will exceed $50,000.

Churchmen Uttered No Word of Accusation Says Member of the Committee

That not a word of accusation against Rev. T. Stanley Oadams had been uttered by the committee of the King street Methodist church, was the statement made by a member of the committee which interviewed the bishop at Fond du Lac. It was said the committee merely discussed "the condition of the church."

The contentions of the committee on behalf of members whom it represented were that it would be "better for both the church and Rev. Oadams were a change made."

The committee reports that the bishop's final decision was that "your problem will be worked out as soon as possible." They say there is no tendency to require a change until there is found for the present a pastor a suitable field, and until a minister satisfactory to the La Crosse church is available.

Fall Hat Day Today
This is the Big Day

The Great American Derby will be run with the Great American Felt Hat also entered in the event.

Every Hat Store is ready for you. All of the new season styles are on display. All the new Derbies and the new Felts.

There are extra salesmen in every hat store and in every hat department—all ready to change your old lid for a new crown.

All the store windows are filled with hats. Everywhere you turn you see the evidence of this eventful day.

If you do not get your new Fall Hat today, tomorrow your old summer hat or your shaggy straw will look as lonesome and as pitiful as a weary Willie in a thunderstorm.

Summer is over. Fall is here. Brains are active. Business is moving. Wherever there is anything inside the head, it naturally desires to have a proper covering outside.

But in any event don't wear your old hat after today. Your friends are liable to misunderstand the situation. You may be able to explain that you have forgotten, but your old hat won't look any better after you have said it.

Remember the new hat makes the man today and the old hat marks him after today.

Get your hat today.

Kaiser's Men Move South from Ghent; Believed Attempt Will Be Made to Retake Brussels

GHENT, Sept. 12.—The Germans have moved south in force and the Belgian troops have reoccupied their positions just outside of the city. That there has been a general German defeat in northern France, and that the great German right wing, which recently passed through Belgium in enormous numbers, is now in serious danger of annihilation is indicated by the sudden withdrawal of the Germans from all of the Scheldt river district. All have been rushed south at top speed. The 40,000 Germans who were about to occupy Ghent are among the number.

As a result the arrangement made between the Germans and the burgomeister, whereby Ghent was to furnish food supplies for 40,000 men for a month, forage for one-third that number of horses, and furnish certain medical supplies and other things, will not be carried out. The Germans having left, their places have been taken by the Belgians who advanced from Antwerp. It is not believed here the movement against this city will be renewed.

Meanwhile the Belgians are again taking the offensive and there are rumors that an attempt to reoccupy Brussels is to be made.

GERMANS RETIRE FROM VITRE AND OTHER POSSESSIONS

assumed the offensive. That it also is retiring, is declared here to show that the retreat of the Germans is now a general one. It is stated that so far as the situation in Lorraine is concerned, the French are now making slight progress. The French now occupy the eastern border of the forest of Champenoux, and it is stated that the Germans have evacuated the town of Saint Die.

Official Statement

The statement as issued here, was as follows:

"The Germans are in full retreat from the rivers Oise and Marne. The Anglo-French forces are in hot pursuit, but the resistance is very much less, and it is apparent that the enemy has been greatly weakened.

"The German right yesterday was retreating north of the Soissons Fismes-Rheims road. Their cavalry is much exhausted.

"On our center and right, the Germans have evacuated Vitry, Le Francois, Sermaize Les Baines and Revigny, where they had been strongly fortified and their retirement was so precipitate that they were forced to abandon much war material. In the Argonnes, the Germans are also retreating to the northward, by way of the forest of Belnoue.

"We are making slight but steady progress in our Lorraine campaign, having occupied the eastern border of the forest of Champenoux, while the Germans have evacuated Saint Die."

Decimate German Force

The first and second British divisions, assisted by the French cavalry and light artillery, decimated a large force of Germans northeast of Paris. The Germans were cut off from their base and although they fought well, they were completely routed, losing more than half their strength in killed and wounded. In addition the British took 6,000 prisoners and fifteen guns.

It is stated that as a result of this capture it is now confirmed that the Germans are short of all supplies. The prisoners taken were actually starving. The British fed them beef and biscuits, which they ravenously devoured.

Retreat Cut in Two

The Germans have been separated completely as a result of their general retreat on the allies' left. General Von Buelow's armies are divided into detachments retreating in different directions. As result they are proving easy to the British cavalry and cycling corps. A force of British cyclists found a German battalion in an isolated piece of woods. They surprised them and killed 150, taking the remaining prisoners.

The losses of the allied armies are again reported as being in the ratio of three to one less than the Germans and it is declared that the German rifle fire does not improve.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Trading in the wheat pit was extremely dull today with the deferred months under selling pressure that brought a decline of 2 to 2 1-8c under last night's closing prices. September futures started a shade firmer, but at the close showed a loss of 2 1-4 cents from last night's close.

Corn was firm and 1-4c higher at the start. September had further advance of 5-8c and the deferred months made additional fractional gains.

Oats started 3-8 to 5-8c higher and held the gain for the brief forenoon session.

Provisions started higher with offerings light. Selling on the rise brought a decline throughout the list.

VETERAN IN CITY SERVICE MUST GO

Pat, for a long time employed by the board of public works, and prior to that with the fire department for many years, must go.

His days of usefulness are over and the Odler theory is to be applied to the faithful worker.

Pat is the chestnut horse that has been doing duty on one of the board of public works wagons. He at one time held the record for attending more fires than any other horse in the department. That was in the days of his youth.

City Veterinarian Holmes last night sent a communication to the council saying it would be humane to kill him. "His teeth are gone, he can't eat, and he should be put out of his misery," read the letter.

2. a. Any senator or member of the assembly may introduce, by presenting to the chief clerk in the house of which he is a member, in open session, at any time during any session of the legislature, any bill or any amendment to any such bill; provided, that the time for so introducing a bill may be limited by rule to not less than thirty legislative days.

b. The chief clerk shall make a record of such bill and every amendment offered thereto, and have the same printed.

3. A proposed law shall be recited in full in the petition and shall consist of a bill which has been introduced in the legislature during the first thirty legislative days of the session, as so introduced; or, at the option of the petitioners, there may be incorporated in said bill any amendment or amendments introduced in the legislature. Such bills and amendments shall be referred to by number in the petition. Upon petition filed not later than four months before the next general election, such proposed law shall be submitted to a vote of the people, and shall become a law if it is approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon and shall take effect and be in force from and after thirty days after the election at which it is approved.

If within said ninety days there shall have been filed a petition to submit to a vote of the people such law or any part thereof, such law or such part thereof shall not take effect until thirty days after its approval by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon.

b. An emergency law shall remain in force, notwithstanding such petition, but shall stand repealed thirty days after being rejected by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon.

c. 5. If measures which conflict with each other in any of their essential provisions are submitted at the same election, only the measure receiving the highest number of votes shall stand as the enactment of the people.

6. The petition shall be filed with the secretary of state and shall be sufficient to require the submission by him of a measure to the people when signed by eight per cent of the qualified electors calculated upon the whole number of votes cast for governor at the last preceding election, of whom not more than one-half shall be residents of any one county.

7. The vote upon measures referred to the people shall be taken at the next election occuring not less than four months after the filing of the petition, and held generally throughout the state pursuant to law or specially called by the governor.

8 The legislature shall provide for furnishing electors the text of all measures to be voted upon by the people.

9. Except that measures specifically affecting a subdivision of the state may be submitted to the people of that subdivision, the legislature shall submit measures to the people only as required by the constitution.

NOTE. (If adopted this amendment will change the provisions of the Constitution which vest the power to make laws exclusively in the Senate and Assembly, so that the people may directly and on their own initiative enact laws and may reject laws passed by the legislature.)

4. Any proposed amendment or amendments to this constitution, agreed to by a majority of the members elected to each of the two houses of the legislature, shall be entered on their journals with the yeas and nays taken thereon, and be submitted to the people by the secretary of state upon petition filed with him signed by five per cent of the qualified electors, calculated upon the whole number of votes cast for governor at the last preceding election, of whom not more than one-half shall be residents of any one county.

5. The legislature shall provide for furnishing the electors the text of all amendments to the constitution to be voted upon by the people.

6. If the people shall approve and ratify such amendment or amendments by a majority of the electors voting thereon, such amendment or amendments shall become a part of the constitution, from and after the election at which approved; provided that if more than one amendment be submitted they shall be submitted in such manner that the people may vote for or against such amendments separately.

DANDRUFF ON CHILD'S HEAD

When Two Weeks Old. Broke Out in Rash. Got Worse and Worse. Did Not Sleep Day or Night. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Head Well Entirely.

Batesville, Ohio.—"My child was about two weeks old when I first noticed a sort of dandruff coming on his head. I tried to comb it off and in so doing I irritated it and caused his head to get in a sore. My child's head broke out in a sort of rash or yellow looking pimples. It just got worse and worse. He was very cross with it and he did not sleep.

"I tried ——— and ——— and they did not do a bit of good so one day my father-in-law asked me if I had tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I told him, 'No.' So he went to the drug store, got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed his head good with Cuticura Soap and warm water and then put the Cuticura Ointment on with a little flannel cloth. It seemed like it stopped that burning and itching for he soon got so he could sleep. In about a week I saw it was getting better so I kept on. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment three months and then his head was well entirely, not leaving a scar." (Signed) Mrs. Clinton Bollinger, Mar. 21, 1914.

Mme. Nordica's Wisdom.

Lilian Nordica once summed up the secret of success in these words:

"Nothing comes to me but through work and perseverance. I work when I do not want to. It takes work and patience to become an artist. It cannot be brought about in a day. To me, I will say frankly, all things come slowly and through toil. Ambition is a fearful master and tyrant, but I would not exchange it for another."

She tells there the truth concerning all real and continued success. A man sometimes reaches a pinnacle by what seems chance and no effort of his own, but he cannot remain there without labor.—Indianapolis Star.

He Knew

Apropos of a millionairess who, having married a policeman in 1912, was now proceeding to divorce him, Representative Henry said in Waco:

"There is no more difficult, no more onerous job on earth than to marry an American girl for her money.

"I happened to say to a Washingtonian one day:

"'Money talks. I tell you, money talks.'

"'Yes, I know it does,' said the Washingtonian. 'I married money.'"

Parted Forever

George, who lives in London, happened to meet the vicar of his native parish the other day, and eagerly asked after some of his old acquaintances.

"And old Mr. Jones?" he asked. "Have you seen him lately?"

The vicar shook his head. "I shall never see him again," he answered slowly. "Mr. Jones has gone to heaven."—Tit-Bits.

Probably Right

They were discussing the North American Indian in a rural school, says a British Weekly, when the teacher asked if anyone could tell him what the leaders of the tribe were called.

"Chief," answered a bright little girl, at the head of the class.

"Correct," answered the teacher. "Now can any of you tell me what the women were called?"

There was a silence for a minute, or two, and then a small boy's hand waved eagerly aloft.

"Well, Frankie?" asked the teacher.

"Mischief," he proudly answered.

Episcopalians to Elect New Bishops

Early steps are to be taken by Episcopalians in various dioceses and districts to elect no fewer than seven new bishops. The House of Bishops itself meets in Minneapolis less than a month hence to elect Missionary Bishops for Nevada, Spokane and Cuba, and it is stated that the influence of present missionary bishops will be exerted at that time to choose men who will accept and who have qualifications, and so avoid if possible the recent declinations of men selected. To elect bishops who are supported by the whole church through its general board the entire House of Bishops is required to come together.

Vacancies exist in the Dioceses of New Jersey and East Carolina, the last named through the very recent death of Bishop Strange, and Bishop-elect Brown, chosen first for Cuba and later for the Virginia coadjutorship, awaits consecration to the old Dominion position.

CHURCH NEWS

All Churches Will Observe "Prayer Sunday"

Word comes from every part of the country, and from every religious body, Protestant, Catholic and Jew, that the appeal of President Wilson to make Sunday, October 4, a day of prayer for peace will be observed with an unanimity never before witnessed in America, certainly not since Civil war times. Leaders of Christian bodies in particular are rushing back from vacations to make preparations and prepare addresses.

In many cities Go to Church Sundays had been planned for Sunday, October 18. These will be kept, so far as can be learned, the Sunday of prayer for peace being regarded as fitting preparation for it.

Decision has been reached in many instances not to make the day one of prayer for cessation from war merely, but for prayer for Christian civilization in all forms of its advance. The temperance and education people, the evangelicals and missionary enthusiasts, are urging that the day give some attention to their plans, and reminding that no advance can be permanent that does not include all forms of effort.

Several leaders have sent to their congregations already requests that prayers in particular be offered for wisdom for government and people of the United States, in conduct during the war in Europe and in possible part in bringing it to an end, and for the leaders in European chancelleries who must, in course of time, bring forward conditions of peace. Everybody predicts that the approaching Sunday will be the greatest demonstration of its kind ever made by a nation not itself in actual war.

Quakers Hold Forth Against War

At their conference just held at Saratoga Hicksite Quakers take high ground against war in general, and inveigh in particular against all who had part in bringing on the present European war. They point out the early stand taken by Quakers against war, and ever since maintained, and while keeping to strict neutrality in their statements, they denounce in severest terms the language affords all who break the world's peace in any form.

Ricker, Racker,
Fire Cracker!
Zip! Boom! Bah!
L.—C.—H.—S.
Rah! Rah! Rah!

Way for the class of '91!. Nobody gets in the body of the column today who didn't study "rhetoric" instead of composition, and "civil government" in place of civics. Let the college-sophomore-and-fledging-clerk classes of this association wait a week; this day's space belongs to older generations.

The gentle reader—if as Holmes wondered, there are any gentle readers—will note that close at hand is a picture, a cut in newspaper parlance, and his attention is respectfully invited to linger on these portraits for a space. Unbelievable as it may seem, these solemn figures are the portraits of the now jovial class of '91, taken in their graduation dresses—or suits—if you please, and with all the pomp and circumstances befitting the birth of so august alumni. On the back of the rare photograph from which this picture is taken is the legend that it was made by Mr. Pryor at his studio on Fourth street.

Let us look at the individual members of this impressive group. The first figure on the left in the standing group is Johanna Fuehr, better known as Hannah Fuehr, whom perhaps some of the older graduates will remember. Next her is Alma Lienlokken, looking, we dare venture, more sober then, than when writing an insurance policy now. The third figure, him of the nonchalant grace, the careless arm and the massive necktie (which doesn't show much in the reproduction) is Elvin Heiberg, now Major Heiberg of the United States cavalry. Leaning as if to emulate the major's airy grace is Rockwell Osborne, now of Winnipeg, Canada. (The president says, by the way, that Rockwell owes this association a quarter for dues!) And the serious figure to Rockwell's left is Alice Trow, now Mrs. Walter McDonald.

In the seated row is, on the left, Emma Hansas. And the portentous figure next to her, who can he be—a judge? A senator? The principal of the high school? None of these; it is simply LeRoy Bennett at the most solemn moment of his life. Next to him is Alice Bunting, somewhat overshadowed by Mr. Bennett's impressiveness. The fourth from the left is Sophie Ranum, now Mrs. H. B. Cameron of San Francisco, and then comes—who? The gentle reader has three guesses. None other than the president of this association, looking a little worried as though she foresaw the difficulties of running a thousand alumni! And last but not least, his friends will easily recognize in spite of the pompadour, Hon. Fred Hartwell, not unknown to fame.

Turn we now to exhibit number two, which also implicates a number of prominent citizens. This is a program of the "nineteenth anniversary of the La Crosse high school"—so runs the title—at the La Crosse theater, Friday evening, June 23, 1893. The famous class of '93 is now educated. On the back of the yellowed sheet is the motto in script, "Not Finished, but Begun," of which Aaron Brayton will have more to say in a moment, and under that is the sufficient heading, The Class; and again under that, "Bertha A. Hoefke, first honors—Grace Loomis, second honors;" whereupon follow the lesser luminaries of this auspicious occasion.

But the real meat of this rare document is the program. "Prof. Langstadt's Orchestra" opened with an overture—Orpheus, by Offenbach, whereupon Laura Osborne (Mrs. Louis W. Austin of Washington, D. C.) read an essay—"1893." Did it deal with the virtues of this distinguished class or with that slice of time known as a year, this particular year being the keystone and pinnacle of the ages? Then the "pupils of the high school" sang, and came then number "4," another essay, "The Advantages of an Education," by Bertha Hoefke. Ah, there were just exactly twenty-two arguments for education, we are sure; for there were exactly twenty-two members of the class of 1893. More music—a solo by Mr. Robert Whelpley—"Thy True Heart," by Max Vogrich; then an "oration"—we are done with essays, mind you, having crossed the boundaries of sex—by Arthur Stavrum on the practical proposition, "Good Roads." And behold the seeds sown by that single address twenty-one years ago, for today people are complaining that the state is spending too much money on good roads. Arthur, you should have been more moderate in your demands. Then Prof. Langstadt's orchestra followed, and we need another paragraph.

Switching back to the militant sex we have another essay, by Helen Woods, "A Plea for the Kindergarten;" then the Misses Anna Hickisch and Barbara Russell sang a duet, "Wanderer's Night Song," by Rubenstein. Comes now a thundering title, "Essay, Municipal Government, by Grace Loomis," which strikes the writer with a queer little shock, for he, too, solved the problems of municipal government when he graduated. Ah, those high school speeches! Kathryn M. Bruce played two solos for number "11," and then followed with due climatic effect the real jewel of the affair, an ORATION (so it is printed in capitals), "Not Finished, but Begun," by Aaron Brayton. Let the school board print, if it must, Aaron Martin Brayton, in the roll of the class; but we know what is demanded of us, and the program shows only the severe dignity of our first and last appellations! What was it that was not finished but begun—editorial writing? Of Life—with a capital L? Aaron, Aaron, I'll wager you were as delicate as the rest of us!

All this pageantry of words must come to an end sometime, but to a fitting end and with a swan-song. Number "13"—what cared the class of '93 for superstition!—was the "Presentation of Diplomas by Hon. David Austin, President Board of Education," and the talented array was capped by Prof. Langstadt's orchestra in "Hungarian Dances, Nos, 1 and 2.—J. Brahms."

The writer has beside his own six extra copies of this program. There were exactly six speakers, one copy to each if they want them. And the association would be glad to hear from the class of '93 through this column—reminiscences of the high school, the teachers, the studies and the discipline. There is many a good tale hidden somewhere. As yet we have no letters from alumni telling of the old days in the high school. Let the class of '93—the famous class of '93—which had for its motto the indisputable sentence, "Not Finished, but Begun," show their colors and break the ice by writing a good letter to the editor of this column.

Short Notes

Edna E. Jolivette, '10, is now teaching in Freemont, Mich. Hally Jolivette, '02, has just received a government position in the bureau of plant industry at Washington, where she is to do research work in botany. Before that she was head of the cytology and plant pathology department in the Washington State college at Pullman. I think she is now a Ph. D.

Harold Davis, '10, now working with the Goodrich Rubber company at Cincinnati, expects to return to the University of Wisconsin for further study.

Margaret Farnam, '08, has returned to her work as head of the home economics department of the Woman's College at Athens, Ohio.

Not every Wisconsin student may know that Louis B. Wolfenson, professor of semitic languages and Hellenistic Greek at the university, is a graduate of the L. C. H. S., class of '98. Look him up when you go back.

Freddie Hughes of the class of '77 (Mrs. F. A. Symons) has written several interesting letters to officers of the association. She is now a resident of San Bernardino, Cal. The Sons of Veterans' camp here was named for her father, Captain Robert Hughes. Mrs. Symons urges all La Crosse alumni who attend the fair at San Francisco to come and see her.

Katherine Martindale, '08, is substituting at the high school for Miss Cora Desmond, who was called home by the sudden death of her father.

Fitch Shaw, '10, enters his senior year at the University of Vermont this fall.

Gertrude Ives, '14, leaves early next week for Chicago, where she will attend Ferry Hall.

The addresses of the following are requested: John Nekola, '96; Edna Belle Reed, '00; Toralf Sanbo, '97; Georgina Smith, '97; Sadie E. Soper, '99; Kathryn Wood, '96.

Much depends upon the point of view; to a freshman, the college yell is the sweetest music.

HOLD REFUGEES FOR PASSAGE MONEY

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Nearly 500 passengers on the Italian liner Ancona were marooned on that vessel within sight of the city for hours today because the steamship company demanded fulfillment of the guarantee of Ambassador Thomas Nelson Page at Rose that the United States government would pay the passage of refugees. Most of the 500 were Americans. Among the penniless passengers was Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady.

COMPLAIN OF BEY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. — Although shrouding its action in deepest diplomatic secrecy, the state department was believed today to have served the complaint on the Turkish ambassador, A. Rustem Bey, against his recent utterances. The offensive interviews said that America might well look after lynchings here before citizens talked about alleged Turkish barbarism. The diplomat said he meant no affront.

TAX BILL GOES OVER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. — Because opposition to the freight tax feature of the proposed internal revenue "war tax" bill is so strong, Democratic Leader Underwood announced today that he would not even introduce the bill, until after President Wilson returns from Cornish, next week, and it is given the president's "O. K."

The BIGGEST Picture THE BIJOU Has Ever Shown

CITY TEAMS MEET IN SECOND GAME OF TITLE SERIES

What promises to be one of the most exciting games of the season will take place tomorrow at League park, when the Clothiers and the Eagles clash for the second time in the series for the championship of the city.

Although the Eagles won the first game, the Clothiers are bent on tying up the series, while on the other hand the Eagles will make a strong bid to bring the series to a close. Saubert and Copsey will probably be the opposing slab artists. Those who saw the men work on Labor day are aware that a pitchers' battle is forthcoming.

The game promises to draw a record-breaking crowd, as interest is extremely keen in the outcome of the battle.

An Ugly Bird.

The pondicherry is not a pretty bird to look at, but his manners are worse than his looks. Even the natives of East India, which is the home of the pondicherry, avoid the place where the ugly creature builds its nest. The East Indian's sense of smell is far from delicate, but even so he draws the line on the pondicherry.

Besides living in so uncleanly a way that both man and birds keep him at a distance, this ill mannered bird has a hateful trick of hissing. There's no melody in his throat at all, no one ever heard him sing, but when he takes to flight he makes a noise similar to that made by an angry snake.

Had to Use His Hands.

"Where is that deaf mute who used to be here?" asked the boss.

"I fired him because he cussed too much," replied the foreman.

"But the other men cuss, don't they?" asked the boss.

"Sure they do," replied the foreman, "but the deaf mute had to stop working every time he used bad language."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

BY HAL SHERIDAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Hustling to Philadelphia for a double header this afternoon, Giant Commander John J. McGraw today is considering a move that he has heretofore strongly opposed in baseball warfare—the using of untried talent in times of stress.

"No pennant was ever won by raw recruits," has been a favorite saying of the New York boss, but today may see him go against that plan.

With Jeff Tesreau and Christy Mathewson as his only winning pitchers, the little Napoleon is forced to pull a new trick or confess himself out of the chase for the pennant. He is declared to have all but decided to use either Schup or Schauer, or possibly both of them, in today's twin bill at Philadelphia. Both youngsters have been with New York some time but neither has been on the firing line at critical times.

"Big Six" breezed through an easy winner in the last clash of the year with the Dodgers. Only once during the fray did Robinson's crew threaten New York, then a lightning double play, started by Larry Doyle, checked them, and after that they were as putty in the hands of 'Old Master."

A batting rally in the ninth—in which two runs were shoved across—allowed the Braves to nose out the Phillies and prevent the Giants from gaining any of their lost ground. Stallings again used his "kid" pitchers—four of them being required. "Little Dick" Crutcher started, and Strand, Cocreham and Davis were called in before the Phillies were stopped.

Johnny Evers had to witness the game from the stands, having been suspended for three days for a rumpus the day before. Whitten, who subbed for him, contributed a hit during the rally in the ninth that saved the game.

In a wierd battle in which seven pitchers were used the Red Sox and Athletics battled to an eight inning tie. The Red Sox drove Pennock and Bush to cover. Shawkey stopped them. The Athletics hammered Joe Wood, Bedient and Vean Gregg, hitting a stump finally in Ray Collins.

Clark Griffith's kid pitcher, Jim Shaw, had an easy time beating the Yankees, holding them to three hits.

Three-fingered Brown essayed to wallop his former team mates, but the St. Louis crew under Fielder Jones nosed him out when his support crumpled.

VARSITY FOOTBALL PROSPECTS DIMMED

News that Berger, Davy and Albright Will Not Make Team Casts Gloom on Badgers

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 12.—The fates appear to be conspiring against football prospects of the University of Wisconsin, even before the season begins. Hardly was it learned that George Davy, crack fullback reserve, who was expected to fill Capt. Tandberg's boots at fullback, was ineligible, when the announcement came that Simpson, star member of the freshman team of two years ago and a strong candidate for left tackle, would not return to the university this year.

Coupled with this is the announcement from Chicago that Louis Berger, brilliant halfback of the reserves in 1912 will report for work with Coach Stagg. He had been expected at Wisconsin, where he played a sensational game as reserve halfback.

Albright, who was expected to be a strong candidate for left end to succeed Harold Ofstie, is at a Milwaukee hospital suffering from a general breakdown.

Boys Not Eligible.

"The beauty of this great and glorious republic," said the American proudly, "is that any boy here may become president."

"Fawncy!" exclaimed the British tourist. "I was under the impression that the president had to be at least forty years of age."—Catholic Standard and Times.

The Assuan Dam.

The great Assuan dam on the Nile is 2,185 yards long and 130 feet high. The water stored behind the dam is estimated by the engineers at over a thousand milions of cubic meters. The gain to the country from the dam is over $20,000,000 a year, to say nothing of the large amount received for the reclaimed lands.—New York American Rich Soil In Arabia.

So valuable is good date garden soil that the Arab will refuse $5,000 an acre for it. Through ages of cultivation it gives no indication of wearing out; hence the exceptional value placed upon it.

It is too bad that the motorcyclists aren't put in the front ranks.

Society's Mandates.

Society can and does execute its own mandates, and if it issues wrong mandates instead of right or any mandates at all in things with which it ought not to meddle it practices a social tyranny more formidable than many kinds of political oppression, since, though not usually upheld by such extreme penalties, it leaves fewer means of escape, penetrating much more deeply into the minute details of life and enslaving even the soul itself.—John Stuart Mill.
